Kiddies' Theater Opened at the Heckscher Home

Performance To-night Is for Directors, but After That

Only Children and Their Parents Can Go There

A theater for kids was opened yesterday at the Heckscher Foundatior for Children, on Fifth Avenue at 105th Street. They call it "The Children's Theater," but they do not mean it, Only kids can act in it and only kids can go there. Of course, your pa and gna can go, too, but not without you.

The Heckscher Foundation for Children was made possible by Mr. and Mrs. August Heckscher. They wanted to see a place where kids could be kids—healthy, happy and protected from life's little but terrible tricks. The place was built and the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children was given an equal share in the running of this big playground. When it opened on August 28 everything was finished, dormitories, dining halls, the gymnasium, school rooms, the swimming pool—but not the theater. Now that is finished.

They're going to have a performance to-night, but not for the kids—just for a lot of directors and directresses and other grown-ups who have paid a great deal of money to see it. Thereaftor, tot-morrow afterneoon, for example, the performance will be for kids, and beginning with the citizens County Chapter; deal crommittees of thundred, to entertain the members of the New York County Chapter; Major Mer Indient Work County Chapter; Major Mer Indient Chapter of the Red Cross in co-operation who will will be

F. P. A. says:

"The story of Queen Marie of Roumania, in Eugene S. Bayger's Roumania, in Eugene S. Bagger's 'Eminent Europeans,' is the most interesting bit of biography we have read since Lytton Strachey's
'Lady Hester Stanhope' in 'Books and Characters.'" Equally interesting are Mr. Bagger's closeups of the other "eminents" in his book, including Ferdinand, Venizelos, Constantine, Masaryk, Paderewski and others.
